K-6 LINE COLLABORATION INSTILLATION

Non objective artwork, is when an artist uses line, shape and color to create an idea in any medium. We discussed the non objective painting, Maquillage, 1913 by Russian painter, Natalya Goncharova. Every class looked at the painting for 30 seconds and see if they can find something other people may not notice.

Why do you see something different? We all have a different point of view, because we all have different experiences, families, and homes.

Why do you think it's important to share your point of view? Your idea could help someone be understanding to your perspective. Also putting points of view together can create one big fantastic idea.

So, that is what we did. We shared what we found in the painting, and used lines and one color to create unity in a collaborative instillation.

All students K-6 donated their line design to the sculpture board to help beautify our school, and share their perspective of lines. Check out our collaborative instillation, pictured on the right.

The WATCH D.O.G.S.® program is a nationally recognized school-based, family, and community engagement organization and has been designed and developed by educators, experts, and parent & guardian volunteers over more than two decades. The program helps provide positive male role models for the students, demonstrating by their presence that education is important. It also provides extra sets of eyes and ears to enhance school security, reduce bullying and provide a greater sense of campus safety, allowing students and teachers to focus on learning and instruction.

Dads and male role models are encouraged to volunteer on our WATCH DOGS Wednesdays. It could be one day per week, month, or school year. You are welcome to sign up for a half day or a whole day at a time. If you would like more information about volunteering or have questions, please get in touch with the school office.
